The Original Mother's Day

Mother's Day is celebrated in many cultures. Although others are given credit for founding the observance, Julia Ward Howe led in establishing what some believe to be the first observance of Mother's Day in the U.S. (2 June 1872) after witnessing the carnage of the U.S. Civil War and the Franco-Prussian War in Europe. The Mother's Day festival, she wrote, "should be devoted to the advocacy of peace doctrines." ...Her idea was to mobilize women as agents of resistance against the policies that led to injustice and war.
